BITTER WORDS FLY AFTER NEW BUFFALO DISMISSAL

Magistrate Angry With Hammond

Moved Out Of His Office As Court Aide

New Buffalo Magistrate Paul Ballew said he was fired yesterday from his magistrate's post by Fifth District Judge Hammond, who acted "without warning, provocation or explanation."

Ballew added, however, that he wasn't surprised because he could never handle the volume of work without additional help. He said he has asked for help and received visits from various Berrien county supervisors who were studying the matter.

"It's like using a Model-T truck to move a mountain of earth that a Mack truck should do," said Ballew of the work load.

The office of magistrate is similar to the old justice of the peace. Magistrate duties are confined mainly to minor traffic matters.

Judge Hammond disputed Ballew's statements.

WRITTEN WARNINGS ..

Hammond said Ballew was not meeting the requirements of the office. "He was given express, written warnings of the minimum requirements on May 26 and has failed to comply with them."

Hammond said that notice was served by himself and Judge John Iwanuk. "We had him read it and sign it."

The New Buffalo magistrate's office has created a hangup in the district court system, Hammond said. Ballew had failed to number cases currently as he received them, causing difficulty for police and defendants.

As for the work load, Hammond said "that's not amazing when one keeps office hours of 10 to 3."

Hammond said Ballew was not fired by him (Hammond) alone. The other two district judges signed the removal notice.

LAW EXPLAINED

Hammond explained the law states that magistrates shall be appointed by district judges, approved and confirmed by the board of supervisors and shall hold office at the pleasure of the district judges.

Ballew voiced sorrow over the action.

"I'm sorry it happened, not for the pay—it's peasant's pay—but I don't like the shoddy way it happened. I'm man enough to take it, though."

According to Ballew, Hammond came to the magistrate's office in the New Buffalo city hall early yesterday afternoon with a Berrien county sheriff's deputy, "walked in, told me I was fired and handed me a paper to that effect."

Ballew said he didn't understand the presence of the deputy, either. "He (Hammond) came down probably expecting an altercation. I've been insisting on additional help. The work load is simply astronomical. Without help, work kept lagging and never got off the ground."

SUCCEEDS ROUMELL

Ballew, a former vaudeville performer and former justice of the peace, was named magistrate for Area A (New Buffalo) last March 17. He succeeded Atty. Stephen Roumell of New Buffalo, who quit over the pay.

Ballew was named to the post by the board of supervisors at the same pay Roumell had received, $6,110 a year. Ballew said yesterday Judge Hammond may have the right to fire him and again maybe he doesn't.

Ballew considered himself an employee of the county, named by the board of supervisors.

Syria Holds Six Israeli Passengers

Bomb Explodes In Cockpit Of Hijacked Plane

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria said today it will free all the passengers aboard a Trans World Airlines jet hijacked to Damascus except for six Israelis. It did not say what would happen to the Israelis.

A young Arab couple seized the Boeing 707 Friday as it was on its way to Athens and Tel Aviv. They said they were members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, an Arab guerrilla group.

Minutes after the plane landed at Damascus, an explosion ripped through the cockpit heavily damaging the front end of the plane. The 103 passengers and crew of 12 had already left moments earlier and escaped injury.

Authorities said they believed the explosion occurred because the hijackers had been unable to defuse the bomb they used to threaten the pilot when they entered the cockpit over the Adriatic Sea.

CAN RECLAIM PLANE

Syria said TWA could reclaim the plane. A TWA spokesman said a plane was sent to Damascus to pick up the passengers and crew.

The TWA flight, No. 840, originated Friday in Los Angeles, with stops in New York and Rome. Then headed for Tel Aviv via Athens. Besides Americans there were Greeks, Cubans and Israelis aboard.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed in a communique issued in Amman, the capital of Jordan, that it had engineered the hijacking in order to seize a passenger it said was responsible for the "death and misery of many Palestinian men, women and children."

The communique said the passenger, who was not identified, would be tried before a revolutionary court. But the Syrian government did not confirm the Popular Front's statement about a trial where it said the other passengers would be freed.

Palestinian sources in Damascus said the hijackers had hoped to capture Gen. Yitzhak Rabin, Israeli ambassador to the United States and chief of staff during the June 1967 war. But he arrived in Tel Aviv on another plane.

Witnesses at the Damascus airport described the hijackers as a young brunette wearing a white pants-suit and a large hat, and a male accomplice wearing a dark suit and dark glasses. Syrian security police escorted the pair away and the government said later that both had Iraqi passports.

The Arab guerrilla group's announcement said passengers whether to appeal.

Forest Fire Threat High In Michigan

LANSING (AP) — Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Friday that the threat of fire is higher in Michigan forests this weekend than any time in the past 10 years.

"This is not the usual summer threat," Kelley said. "I urge every law enforcement agency in the state to enforce (arson) laws fully and swiftly."

Michigan laws on the subject, Kelley said, provide for a county jail sentence of 90 days or $100 fine for "wilfully, negligently or carelessly" setting a fire which causes damage.

Conviction for maliciously setting a fire which endangers life or destroys property is a felony subject to imprisonment for as much as 10 years, $500 fine or both, Kelley said.

In addition, the person who sets a fire may be liable for all expenses incurred by the state in putting it out. The state also may sue to recover on claims not paid within 60 days, Kelley said.

No Measurable Rain In Past Three Weeks

August has been an arid month after the inundations of June and July.

Ross field reports no measurable rain in more than three weeks. The August total is 1.27 inches from showers on the first and seventh.

June produced a whopping 5.46 inches and July 4.17. Because the area went into August nearly saturated, this month's drought has been noticeable only in the past few days.

The weatherman said there was a chance of showers today and tomorrow. The long holiday weekend should be warm.

Rain played havoc with many vacation plans in June and July with showers on seven of the nine weekends.

Bye Bye To Summer

Eighty-seven years ago Peter J. McGuire, one of the founders of the Knights of Labor, the forerunner of the AFL, persuaded the New York state legislature to declare the first Monday in September a holiday to pay homage to the working man.

This was in an age when everyone, workman and shop or store owner, pursued a livelihood for 10 to 12 hours in each day. The only pause was on Sunday and a few special occasions such as Christmas, the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Memorial Day and New Year's. Vacation was a dictionary term.

Work was more than a necessity. It was a national attitude.

Why McGuire picked September's first Monday for another holiday is not too clear. Perhaps the long toil through the summer's heat prompted the timing.

The idea spread rapidly beyond the New York state line and within a few years Congress put McGuire's idea on a national plane.

As with most holidays, Labor Day is not observed in the ethical significance behind its origination. The speeches and the parades have grown perfunctory, and the day has long since been marked down for the opposite of what McGuire had in mind.

It stands for the end of summer and the resumption of the routine normal to the equinoxes between fall and spring.

The kids return to school, assuming the teachers are not still bargaining over new contracts.

The tourist and resort operators in the northerly latitudes begin to board up their hostilities and to make test runs on their books.

Mom'n Pop are back to house-keeping and the job.

Exceptions to this cycle are growing, but for the most part, it is back to the mines.

The respite was great while it lasted, and most feel it was all too short.

Where did summer go, is a widespread question right now.

An Anxious Weekend For Teddy Kennedy

Unless the lawyers for Senator Edward Kennedy and eight acquaintances can bend the ear of a court higher and friendlier than that conducted by James A. Boyle, a district judge at Edgartown, Massachusetts, the drama of what happened on the night of July 18th at Chappaquiddick Island will have its curtain raiser this coming Wednesday.

"What Happened," as the melodrama might be dubbed, is the mystery leading to the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, a Washington secretary, in Kennedy's automobile and why Teddy delayed nine to ten hours to report the mishap.

Judge Boyle ruled Thursday against applying some ground rules to the inquest which Kennedy's lawyers contend are absolutely essential considering the prominence of the most material witness to the tragedy.

Specifically, Boyle denied their motions to allow them to cross-examine witnesses, to present evidence on their own volition, to require witnesses to appear, and to seek court rulings on submitted evidence.

An inquest, said Boyle, is an inquiry into the causes of an unexplained death and is to be conducted by the state under rules of its own choosing.

The only limitation, he continued, is the constitutional right of a witness to take the Fifth. The lawyers, he went on, may be present to advise their clients on that score alone.

This is the historic concept of an inquest. It is one of the many pieces of legal lore handed down to us from the English forefathers who first settled the U.S.

The findings by the inquest are presumptive only.

Extrinsic evidence can be introduced at a later date and in the proper forum to dispute or amend a determination that death resulted by accident, from natural or unexplained causes, or by foul play.

A coroner's jury or as under the Massachusetts practice, the presiding magistrate, can not order a suspect to trial nor deliver a verdict for money damages, but can only recommend that the state institute a criminal prosecution.

Unlike a grand jury which can return indictments, the inquest ordinarily is conducted openly.

Its presiding officer, however, may screen its hearings from public view. He must, though, disclose his opinion on the cause of death as a matter of public record.

The attorneys for Mary Jo's parents who are contesting an exhumation of her body told reporters that Judge Boyle already has notified them that neither they nor the parents may be present.

Whether Boyle will lock out the press corps and the private citizenry is uncertain at this writing.

If he does, this would be a practical answer to Teddy's lawyers who claim that the historic legal concept of an inquest is meaningless when one of the biggest guns in American political life is the No. 1 witness.

Public speculation on the party preceding the ill fated ride, the purpose of the nocturnal jaunt, and Teddy's long delayed, self-conflicting version of what happened lends further weight to their contention that the safeguards in a criminal trial should be fastened upon an investigative procedure.

Unspoken in their argument, though fairly implicit in their words, is the political hostility of District Attorney Edmund Dinis to Kennedy.

Why Dinis dallied so long in getting the inquest under way is another titillation gossiped widely on Martha's Vineyard.

His silence on that score suggests he was weighing the chance to make hay against future voter retribution, and possibly was pushed by others into doing belatedly what should have been started when Mary Jo's body was recovered from its watery grave.

This personal vendetta is not a ground for Dinis leading the probe, but it does underpin the charge that the inquest could turn into a witch hunt.

The argument is plausible and if one is a Kennedy fan, absolutely air tight.

Teddy and no one else has sewn the holes in it.

His first reaction was to have one of his pals take the blame for the accident. This idea was scrapped after an onlooker at the death scene accidentally stumbled on to a rehearsal by the substitute.

Then he summoned a battalion of Kennedy friends, including former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, now president of the World Bank, and Ted Sorenson, a special White House assistant for JFK, to advise him on what to do; more exactly, how to present a situation with a minimum of political repercussions.

Finally, came a televised statement which for incoherence and inconsistency rivals the worst in the late night talk shows now flooding the air waves.

Additionally, the five girls and three men present at varying times during the party preceding Mary Jo's death have been clammed up ever since the accident.

How far the inquest can slice through this mush remains to be seen, but in any event Boyle so far has seen to it that there should be one set of rules for everybody.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Prefabricated Will

Whether you are aware of it or not, a "will" has already been prepared for you. Known as the "statute of descent and distribution," it is a plan drawn up by your state legislature, to be used after your death in case you fail to make a will of your own.

How does this prefabricated will divide up your estate? Generally speaking, it follows a kind of law of averages, dividing things up the way an average person probably would.

KILLER GETS ESTATE
In theory, that makes sense. But in practice, the use of cut-and-dried rules can have some startling consequences. For example:

In one case, a youth who murdered his father was held entitled to his estate. Under the state statute (since charged), a son's rights were automatic—no one having thought about the possibility of murder.

In another case, a woman was awarded her husband's estate even though she was living in adultery at the time of his death. To outraged objections by his relatives, the court replied:

"It is unnecessary to discuss wisdom or morality. It is sufficient that the legislature has declared the rules by which the rights of the parties must be determined."

PART TO WIDOW
True, these are extreme cases. But the prefabricated will also works out badly in many everyday circumstances. Take the situation when a man dies, leaving small children and only a modest estate.

In most states, if he has not made a will of his own, only part of his estate would go to the widow—the balance going directly to the children. For the widow, this could mean years of going through court procedures, for permission to spend the children's money on the ordinary expenses of life.

The trouble is not that the lawmakers, in drawing up the prefabricated will, don't try to be fair. Rather, the trouble is that they cannot possibly foresee the particular needs of each individual family.

They cannot know, for instance, that one of your children needs more protection than the others, or that you would like to make a grateful bequest to an old friend, or that you want to lend your support to a favorite charity.

No prefabricated will can possibly take account of such things. In fact, nobody can but you.

DR. COLEMAN

.. And Speaking Of Your Health

Cholesterol, one of the by-products of fatty foods, has been incriminated as one of the major causes of arteriosclerosis. Most physicians are impressed by evidence that cholesterol is the culprit helping to deposit plaques in the blood vessels. There are a few physicians who have not accepted this without reservation.

Now a very interesting sci-Dr. Coleman entific report seems to point definitely to the fact that crystals of cholesterol are definitely present in the blood vessels and may lay the groundwork for greater accumulation of calcium in the arteries.

Dr. Daniel Mason of the Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia and his colleagues have been using an extremely high-powered microscope to detect crystals of cholesterol in blood vessels. This exciting observation may give scientists a greater insight to clues for the ideal ways of preventing narrowing of the blood vessels in all parts of the body.

Viruses are beginning to intrigue more and more scientists because of the possibility of a relationship between them and certain cancers. Some tumors have already been linked with viruses that can only be seen under the electron microscopes.

Now it remains to be learned if the virus is a real cause of tumors or is hitchhiking and unrelated. At the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine, the answer to this problem may soon be evident.

Schistosomiasis (skis-to-so-mi-as-is) is a parasitic disease widespread throughout Africa, Asia and tropical parts of the world. This is an ancient disease which probably causes more havoc than does malaria in tropical and subtropical areas. The human becomes infected by swimming and bathing in infected waters. The parasite penetrates the skin and later may invade the liver and other organs producing considerable damage. Snails are said to carry this and other related parasites.

A new experimental drug, hycanthone, is now being used with tremendous success in vast groups of patients infected with one of the many types of parasites.

Dr. Sidney Archer and Dr. Emory W. Dennis at the Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute in Rensselaer, New York, have obtained remarkable results with single injections of this new drug.

After sufficient trials to reduce toxic side effects the drug will be distributed in all countries where the disease is rampant. This is a historic contribution to tropical medicine.

Opening lead—ten of clubs. When you run into the unexpected difficulties during the play, due to bad distribution, it is only natural to try to find a way of overcoming them.

South was in six notrump and got a club lead. He could count twelve tricks—two spades, two hearts, three clubs, and five diamonds (assuming a normal diamond break).

But when he won the club with the jack and led a low diamond to the queen, West showed out and South was in trouble. He had to revise his count—he had only eleven tricks instead of twelve. There was very little hope for a twelfth trick unless he could gain one in hearts or by either dropping the queen or arranging an endplay so South proceeded to play along these lines.

He led a low diamond at trick three and finessed the ten, then cashed the ace of diamonds and A-K of clubs. East had to discard on the last club and, as he could not spare a diamond, he had to choose between a spade or a heart.

He realized that declarer had the A-K of hearts, for without them he could not have had a normal notrump bid (16 to 18 points). So, rather than hand South his twelfth trick in hearts, East discarded a spade, hoping that West had the ten of spades.

Declarer thereupon cashed the king of diamonds and A-K of spades, ending in dummy.

By now everyone was down to four cards. Dummy had three hearts and a diamond and so did East. South had three hearts and the nine of spades, West three hearts and the ten of spades.

A diamond from dummy put East on lead with the jack, South discarding a spade, and forced East to return a heart away from the queen. As a result, South made the last three tricks and thus brought home the slam.

BORN TODAY

Low-pressure star of the popular television series, "My Three Sons," Fred MacMurray has parlayed his "nice guy" image into a fortune so sizeable that, even in Hollywood, it has become something of a legend.

He has played leading man to Hollywood's most glamorous women and become a classic in the field of light comedy.

Along the way, he made several side excursions into nice-guy-turned-heel roles that established his versatility.

An only child, he was born in Kankakee, Ill., where his violinist father happened to be performing a concert at the time. MacMurray delivered his own first performance on the violin at the age of five.

He graduated from Beaver Dam, Wis., high school with ten letters for athletics and a medal for best athletic and scholastic average.

He organized his own three-piece orchestra (he played the saxophone) called "Mac's Melody Boys."

His third movie, "The Gilded Lily," opposite Claudette Colbert set him prominently in the public eye and launched him as a star.

He played in such films as "Bride Comes Home," "The Egg and I" and "Suddenly It's Spring."

As demand for MacMurray grew so did his list of credits: "Double Indemnity," "Miracle of the Bells," "The Cain Mutiny," "Rains of Ranchipur," and "The Apartment."

In 1959 the Walt Disney studio tapped him for "The Shaggy Dog" at a time when his career had begun to slacken. Since then he's zoomed back to the high plateau of the star.

BH Woman Wounded In Shooting

A woman shot during a family argument early today was reported in critical condition in Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor.

Mrs. Erma Jean Hall, 29, of 706 Thresher avenue, was struck in the left shoulder region, Benton Harbor police said.

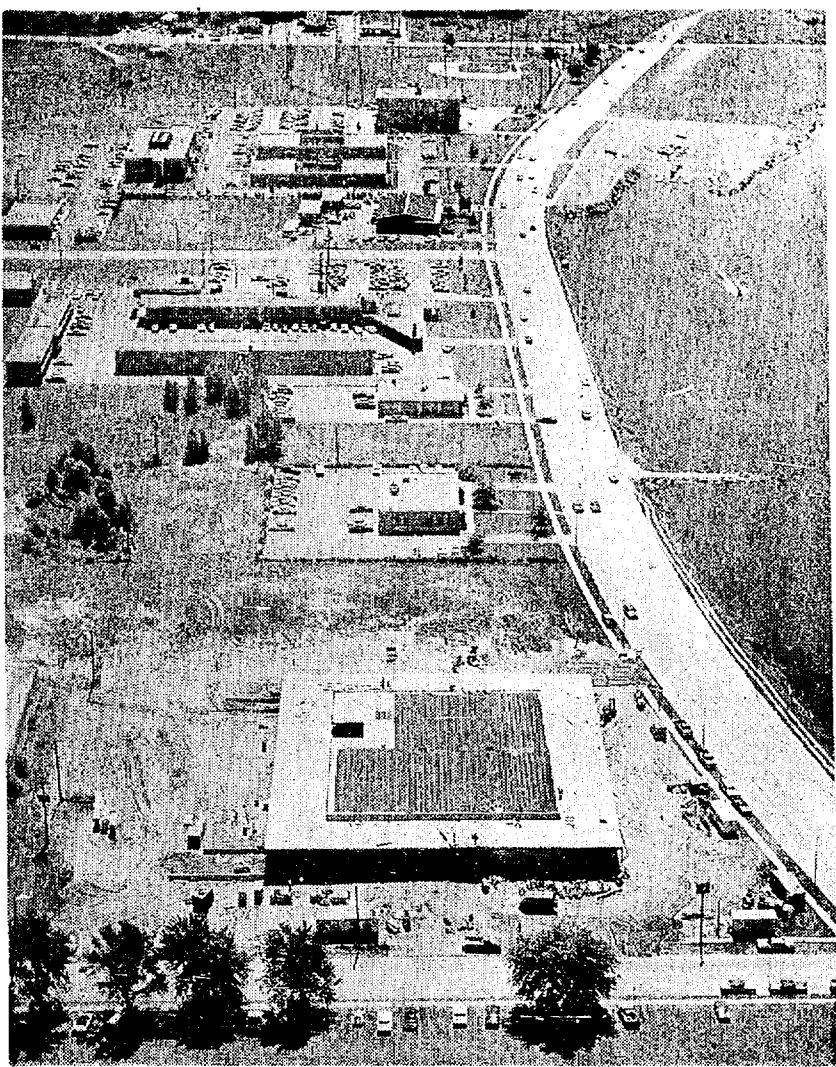

Eddie Hall, 34, of 150 Smith court, was being held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said Mrs. Lula Mae Carlton, 620 Thresher, reported that Mrs. Hall had gone onto the porch to talk with her husband a few minutes before the shooting occurred. She said she heard two shots and went to investigate. Mrs. Hall was being dragged into a car when she got to the porch, Mrs. Carlton said.

According to Mrs. Carlton, Mrs. Hall and several other persons had been playing cards in her house when Hall came to the door. The couple was separated.

Police took Hall into custody at the hospital where he was found with Mrs. Hall.

In other arrests: Benton Harbor police arrested two men on charges of disorderly gambling after a group of youths were seen rolling dice near a building at Sixth and Water streets about 1 a.m. Charged were Greg M. Superintendent Asks Cooperation Of Parents

Dr. Lewis Gives 10 Guidelines

Dr. Mark E. Lewis, Benton Harbor schools superintendent, issued an open letter to parents in preparation for the opening of school. In it, he calls for cooperation and outlined 10 guidelines for helping students through the year.

"We are all desirous of seeing your children succeed in school," said Dr. Lewis. "We have much at stake because our reputation as educators depend upon our success/failure ratio. You have much at stake because your children are the raw products with which we work. We are partners in this endeavor. We assure you our full cooperation. You can help assure the success of your children if you will."

1. Insist upon punctuality and regularity at school.
2. Instruct your children in proper behavior at school.
3. Read carefully all notices and reports from school, and through the principal and teachers keep in touch with the work of your children.
4. Establish a time and place for each child to do homework. If there is no homework on a particular school day the study time should be spent in reading.

St. Joe Sisters Attend Session

The Misses Dale and Lynne Duesenberg of St. Joseph are in Boston this week attending the biennial college meeting of the First Church of Christ Scientist. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Duesenberg, 2810 Evergreen drive. Dale will be a senior at Michigan State University this fall, and Lynne a junior at the same school.

5. Cooperate in teaching your children to take good care of school books and other school property.
6. Withhold judgment regarding reports of happenings at school until you have heard both sides; and then never criticize the teacher in the presence of the children. If you wish to complain about school personnel see the principal.
7. See to it that the progress of your children in school is not hindered by the fatigue resulting from insufficient rest.

8. Report any harassment of your children to and from school to the police and to the school principal.

9. Teach your children to take pride in doing well any task they undertake.

10. Teach your children to respect the person and property of others.

Sleeping At Home Of Relative

Fire's Cause Still Under Investigation

A 10-year-old girl carried from a house where fire erupted while she was sleeping last night was reported in fair condition today in Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor.

The girl, Wanda Ostrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Imbler, 356 Bluff court, St. Joseph township, suffered second degree burns of her face, arms and legs, hospital attendants said.

Charles J. Gray, 38, of 566 Bridgman street, Benton township, told township police he carried the girl from a relative's home at 981 Enders street, Benton township, after being told she was inside.

Gray, a factory worker told officers that he was visiting the house when fire broke out in a couch and he could not put it out. He said he led the girl's grandfather, John Vincent, 74, to safety and then was told by him that the girl was inside. He said he found her lying on the floor.

CAUSE UNDETERMINED

Township fire department Lt. Harry Kraklaw said the cause of the fire had not been determined and the case was still under investigation.

According to the official, the glow from the flames was visible from the fire station about 250 feet away when the department received the alarm.

The official and township police could not explain the extent of damage. They said the entire front portion of the one-story house was affected.

The officials said the occupant of the house, Mrs. Grace Davis, the girl's aunt, was not at home when the fire occurred about 10:15 p.m.

Gray said he was at the house about 15 minutes talking with Vincent when he saw the fire. He said he tried to smother the flames with a blanket.

According to his statement to police, Gray said he took Vincent out the front door but was forced to kick a side door open to reach the girl. He said the flames were blocking the front door.

SOUTH HAVEN RUBBER COMPANY STRIKE ENDS

License Plates
Get New LookTags Will Have Three
Letters In 1970

LANSING—(Special)—Michigan's 1970 automobile license plates will, for the first time, bear three letters and three numerals, Secretary of State James M. Hare announced this week.

Along with the change in plate design, Hare said, the expiration date for 1969 passenger car and motorcycle tags has been extended to March 31, instead of the end of each February. Commercial and trailer plates will expire on the last day of February each year, as in the past.

The shift in expiration dates was effected to help reduce the congestion and long lines of plate purchasers as deadlines approach. An additional month in which to buy passenger tags after commercial and trailer plate purchases have tapered off should alleviate the problem of crowding, Hare pointed out.

GOLD, WHITE COLORS

Commercial and trailer tags will go on sale October 1, and the first new passenger car plates will be available November 15.

The new plates will have a gold background with white letters and numerals representing the colors of Oakland University, Hare said.

"The change to a system of three letters and three numerals, from the former system of two letters and four numerals," Hare explained, "is another step in our program to prepare for the future. The steadily increasing number of automobile registrations in Michigan demands a more flexible method of accommodating them. The new combination will permit the issuance of millions more plates without having to increase the number of characters on the tags. We could, by using every conceivable combination of letters and numerals, issue more than 20 million plates without fear of duplication."

FIVE MILLION SETS

The Michigan Department of State expects to issue more than five million sets of plates for 1970, the largest number in any single year. At least four million of these sets will go to passenger car owners.

Michigan first began using combinations of two letters and four numerals on its license plates in 1933. The new system is much more efficient than the old, Hare said, "because the new method reduces accounting and inventory costs. The three letter, three numeral approach is easily adapted into the State Department's gigantic computer system."

"In addition to providing more license number possibilities, the new format provides 10 times more of the low numbered plates that are so popular with motorists. At the moment, 1,000 plates will be issued to each of the three letter series," Hare said.

Ag Official
Says Spray
Successful

A Michigan Department of Agriculture official Friday termed highly successful a recent aerial insecticide spray to knock out a Japanese beetle infestation on 250 acres at the north edge of Grand Mere state park, Lake township.

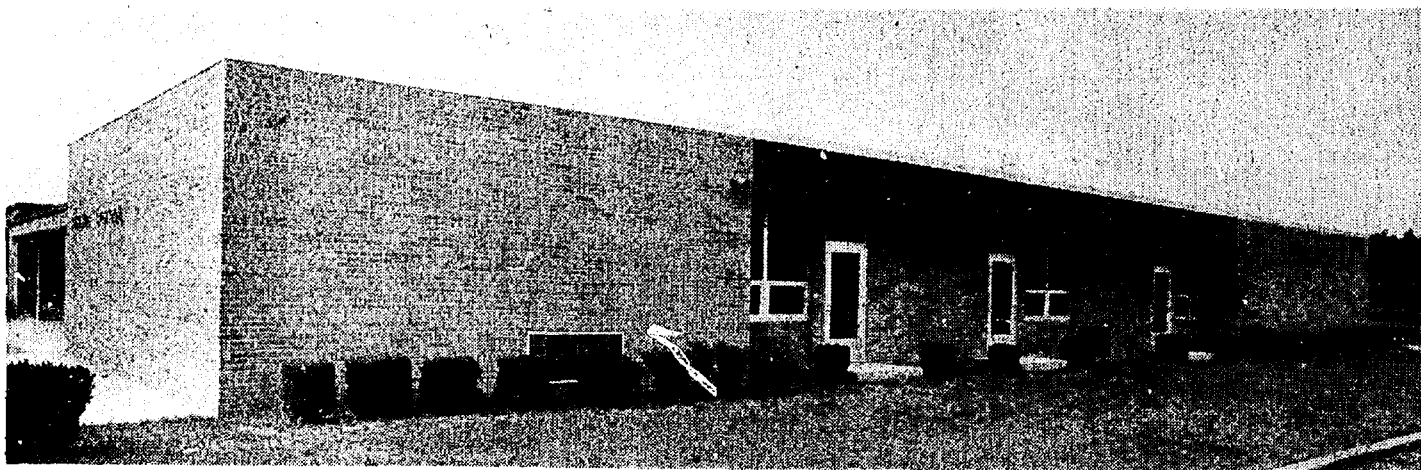

"We saw a lot of beetles feeding, and after the spray there were none," said Donald White, regional supervisor for the department.

Japanese beetles attack and eat some 250 different kinds of plant life both in grub and adult stages. The department's previous beetle spray in this area was conducted last fall near the recent infestation.

The recent spray, done with Sevin—an insecticide with a seven-day life described as harmless to mammals, fish and other wildlife—followed the consent of the state Department of Natural Resources and property owners in the spray area, White said.

School Closed
At Eau Claire

EAU CLAIRE—Don K. Silcox, Eau Claire superintendent of schools, has announced that a last minute change in plans has resulted in a decision not to use the Shanghai school building this year.

Silcox said the district was not able to secure a special education teacher and that an extra portable classroom is available, opening up two additional classrooms at the Lybrook elementary school.

The extra classrooms will result in the Shanghai building being closed for this year.

The two-room building had been used to house two classes of first graders.

Silcox said on the first day of school on Tuesday, first graders who normally walk to school or are transported by their parents are to report to the Lybrook school if they were originally assigned to the Shanghai school. First graders normally picked up by buses and taken to the Shanghai school will be taken to the Lybrook school. On Tuesday, only a half-day of school will be held.

Silcox said the change at Shanghai will not affect students assigned to the Eureka school and their schedule will remain as assigned.

The state's 28 public community colleges are the best prospects for late applications, a department spokesman said.

Slated To Run
For 18 Months

SOUTH HAVEN—A one and one-half year old strike between members of the United Auto Workers (UAW) local 1425 and the South Haven Rubber Co. is ending as a result of a new collective bargaining agreement, according to Dale Buyce, South Haven Rubber Co. personnel director.

In a press release yesterday, Buyce said the new contract will run for an 18-month period ending March 1, 1971. He said the agreement is effective immediately but details of the settlement are being withheld pending written notices to employees.

More than 250 UAW members walked off their jobs from the South Haven Rubber Co., 400 Ayworth avenue, Feb. 3, 1968, after fulfilling terms of a previous one-year contract. In Sept. 5 of that year, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) conducted an election among plant workers resulting in UAW representation for contract bargaining.

Official validation of some 119 ballots from the 1968 election was recently decided by the NLRB because they had originally been challenged by both the UAW and the company. With the NLRB counting of the challenged ballots, the UAW was chosen as bargaining agent. The final vote was 163 for the union and 110 voting non-union.

Shibinski

To ResignPolice Chief
Sends Letters

BUCHANAN—Suspended Buchanan Police Chief David Shibinski said today he will not submit his resignation. He also charged Buchanan City Manager Robert Faulhaber with undue harassment.

Shibinski said he made this clear in a letter sent Friday to Faulhaber, Mayor Kenneth Witt and city commissioners. Shibinski added however that he now plans to seek other employment while determining what next legal steps he might take.

The chief was suspended Aug. 15 by Faulhaber, who alleged violation of a confidence. Faulhaber charged that the chief had talked to his officers about a plan to lease protection from the sheriff's department.

Shibinski won a public hearing held here last Wednesday after his attorney asked for one and some 600 residents signed petitions in support of a hearing. On Thursday, the city commission voted to take no further action in the matter, leaving the suspension in the hands of Faulhaber.

Mayor Witt said today he had not received Shibinski's letter, and added that Faulhaber had ordered Shibinski's resignation by tomorrow.

Shibinski indicated today that there may be nothing further he can do, but he will still study the matter.
